Forecast For West Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 24 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Early rain clearing to leave a bright day.

Today:
Any early light rain will soon clear away to the southeast through the morning to leave a dry day with plenty of sunny spells throughout. Feeling pleasant in the sunshine. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
Remaining dry this evening with some patchy cloud. Cloud will thicken from the west overnight with a few showers possible by dawn. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Thursday:
After a cold start, it will be a largely dry day with sunny spells. A few blustery scattered showers are possible and winds strengthening later. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Blustery showers and strong winds on Friday with possible hail and thunder and feeling colder. Drier and brighter on Saturday. Further outbreaks of rain early on Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.